

Alejo P. Guevara

July 13, 1936 - January 24, 2013

Alejo Perez Guevara was born on July 13th, 1936 he rode away with God January 24th at the age of 76.

From his granddaughter, Amberlee: Alejo was many great things a father, a grandfather, a mentor, an uncle, a brother, and a loving husband. He was more than a strong and hard working man. He was kindhearted, unselfish, and gave out love in the toughest way, but he loved with a love that people craved. When Alejo entered a room everyone shook his hand not because it was the polite thing to do, but because the respect people had for him. He was indeed a marvelous creature God made. If I could picture God standing back and admiring His work, I would see God smirking and grinning knowing this man was more than two handfuls, but was proud of His work; And sent him to the luckiest families: the Trinidad, Guevara and Trevino families. Even though Alejo is no longer with us, he has left impeccable gifts anyone could ever ask for from a loved one who is leaving. Love, tears, memories, lessons, and hours of talking around a bonfire, but I will not end this tragic man's life story as a goodbye, but as a holiday, as a "You're Welcome" to God as he takes back this noble man into his home. We will see Alejo again. And not only will he know, but we will know, "not to forget the beer".

His surviving wife, Lilia O. Guevara would like to thank everyone who attended his last rights service.
