“ December 2, 2023 - Saturday when I tagged along with my sister, Alicia and David to Kickapoo. She wasn't sure if she wanted to go gamble or go to the beach. She ended up going to the beach too. She texted me on Tuesday, the 5th that she was headed to the beach and was almost there. I'm happy she got to do both. I miss you sister. I'll always remember all the good times we shared. I love you Alicia.

Dear family and friends,

I'm feeling so sad and heartbroken at the sudden loss of my sister Alicia. I'm going to miss my sweet, kind, loving sister so much.

Getting that call early Wednesday morning was so devastating. We are all still in shock and in disbelief. I can not accept this - my sister was only 58. We were supposed to grow old together.

We had so many good times together. I would stay with her when I was a young kid and teenager. I would even skip school to hang out with her. She would always take me out to eat, the movies, BINGO, and shopping. I would always help her with her kids and she would always tell me that she remembers me helping her all the time with her kids. She had just told me that again on Saturday, when I went with her and David to Kickapoo.

Then as we got older, we would spend time together whenever we could like at the kids' birthday parties, Mother's Day, Easter, Christmas, New Year's, just visiting and at Dad or Mom's house.

She would always call me to talk. She would share stuff with me that she read or heard about eating right and ask if I had exercised. She would say, "remember there's no excuses."

She would let me know how her kids and grandkids were doing and ask about mine.

I remember that she and David were always visiting her kids and grandkids and helping them anyway they could and they were always helping someone in the family or a friend that needed help too.

We shared many good years together and looking back, we also had times when life got in the way. I'm grateful for the good times that we got to enjoy together. I will hold on to those great memories forever.

I miss you sister and you will always be in my heart. I love you Alicia.
