“ I worked with Tony through the years at the PD. He always had time to listen to his co-workers and offer a suggestion and guidance when needed. He treated everyone fairly and required that of the officers and detectives that worked for him. There was never any doubt that he stood behind his Troops when the going got rough, a rare trait now days. God Bless You and Your Family, God Speed Brother.

“ I remember when Tony asked me to help tutor his daughter Caitlin at work, in calculus. Of course, my 'tutoring' didn't last very long, as she caught on extremely quickly and did not need my help after a short time. I remember telling Tony that his daughter was a genius, and would surpass him in every way one day. That wasn't an insult, that was a compliment. That's what we all wish for, our children to surpass us. Tony was my supervisor at the time. I told him I wouldn't be surprised if Caitlin ended up being our first female President. He flashed a broad smile and said "Yeah." Tony didn't like to brag, but I could tell he was extremely proud of Caitlin. I don't see this so much as Tony being gone, as his DNA lives on in his daughter's body, along with the memories. I have no doubt Caitlin will excel in her career and life. She had a damn good mentor in her dad. Rest in peace, Tony. I have no doubt your daughter will do you proud.
