What can I say about Ivy? Outwardly, he made a bold statement. First, the made his entrance to a place driving his very special Hummer. If he wasn't working, he liked to dress in coordinated bright colors, including shoes, caps, and headbands. Inwardly, he was such a fine man. He was a loving man who respected others and was always willing to to give anyone a helping hand. He was devoted to his lovely wife, Annie, and their extended family. He was a faithful supporter of his church. Ivy was funny, often sharing a new joke at WB. All of the community who were regular customers at WB loved him and appreciated the good service he gave them. My husband, Leland, and I met him at WB years ago when Ivy was only a fellow customer. We enjoyed being friends with him, Annie, and all the rest of our WB family. After my husband's death, he was especially supportive to me and my family. The world has lost a fine man. My thoughts and prayers are with Annie and their extended family. Rosa Lee Clary

“ I was very lucky to have Ivy as a neighbor. Blessed is more fitting though. He was a wonderful person and over the last few years I truly made a great friend. We had some small plans for hanging out and doing typical “guy” things but my health has been rocky over the last few years. Ivy always made time to call and check on me, or remind me of my upcoming treatments and just offer some advice and support. My condolences to his family and friends, he was great and he will be missed. Thank you for everything, love ya, rest well.

“ Ivy was such a special part of WB #661. I will cherish his side hugs and warm and friendly smile. He had such a big impact not just on me, but many working in our Home Office.

My prayers are with his wife, his family and his extended family at WB #661.

With deepest sympathy,
