“ *Blakey-Pooh,
Now that the “To-Do-List” is complete, my heart is numb. I don’t know that my heart will ever be full again until I am reunited with you. Mommy misses you so much, and I wish I could have taken your place. I would do anything to have you bang on the front door one last time, and barge inside asking for food. Begging me to make you a lasagna or some “white people food” because all you eat is Mexican food. I just want to hold you in my arms a little longer and have you make some dumb joke so I’ll stop being sentimental. Everyone knows you are my favorite child, and you’re the only one that can knock sense into your siblings when they are being brats. You had so many dreams and goals ahead of you and your life was taken far too soon. I’m soooo angry and wish I could undo this whole last week. My only dream now is to be reunited with you soon My Baby Love.
Forever and Always,
Your Mommy*

“ I had the pleasure of meeting Blake a few weeks ago. He was outside at the ranch starting a fire because it was freezing out. I could still hear him say, “Hi Ms.Kim....”. I just got back from the rodeo and brought some wagu sausage. He opened it up and cooked it on the grill. He had such a kind nature about him. As the fire starts to go down, he goes to grab the chain saw and starts to cut up more wood as his father Cody helped. It was a fun night sitting around the fire. I'll cherish his memory.
My deepest condolences to you all, my heart hurts with you. Rest in Heaven Blake 🙏

When I was working with Cody and Blake and the West Brothers. We were always working together on the jobs. It was so good to hear Blake saying good things about me and everyone else that made our jobs fun. Blake was always fun for all of us.
