“ *Sister Ann shared an experience she had with her baby son many years ago. She was driving with her baby son. When she stopped at a traffic light, a man she did not know got in her car and asked her for a ride. She got the address from him and took him to the location. She asked him to leave and so he left the car. I told her she was very brave. She said she was glad she told me about the experience because she forgot that she had been brave. She was still brave.
