“ I knew and loved Elizabeth. I had moved from the area in 2006 but when I visited the area a couple years later, I went and seen her. She was such a beautiful soul, a bright spot in a gloomy world. Her love of family history was something we shared. I've thought of her many many times over the years, I've prayed she found peace with the circumstances that moved her to South Texas. She loved San Antonio and her many friends and neighbors there, her stories of her adventures there and with Harry and Chloe were ones of a life well lived. I so admired her. Love you Elizabeth.
