

Eric Duane Gabitsch

October 15, 1981 - June 20, 2017

I want you to remember my brother, Eric Gabitsch, in two ways.

One: Pick up an instrument, or some other means of creating art. My brother's primary instrument was guitar, but after awhile, he could play anything. He also wrote stories, made films, anything to fuel that creative fire. Do that for yourself. Create. Leave something beautiful behind. If you can't, help someone else. Get a kid his first little piano, her first set of paints. Make fire.

Two: Get healthy. Stay alive. People are counting on you, whether you know it or not. They love you, your smile, your laugh. You are important to the people who love you. Take care of yourself.

I saw Eric last Sunday. He told me he loved me, and that he was glad I was his brother. I will never get to hear him say that again, but I know he meant it.

“ We send our deepest sympathy and are shocked and very sad to learn of Eric's passing. I remember him as a sweet little boy. Robi, this is something no Mother should have to endure and I am so, so sorry you have to go through this. I wish you peace and strength to get through this time and will be thinking of you in the days and weeks ahead. Love, Annette & Mark Hartzler

“ Eric was family. Eric was my son's music teacher for a time. I wish Eric had gotten the chance to hear Andrew play his Accordion. Eric your music was beautiful the first instrument that I heard you play was the Harmonica before you played the Guitar in presence. You are a great musician that the world missed out on Ever Getting to Know.
