“ Farewell

There is grieve that does not allow the comfort of strangers and hurt, that only time can gently heal.

This last week there was a moment of comfort for me. It was the moment I looked at Mama Lupe's picture. This picture is showing me Mama Lupe the way, we all want to keep her in loving memory.

Sadly her and my wish, to see each other again, did not come true.

Every time we were talking on the phone, she asked: "When are you coming?" Mama Lupe, just like me, could not travel that far anymore, due to health reasons.

I sincerely hope from the bottom of my heart, that she had good moments in all those years of her life. Together with her husband Alex, our father, my siblings and her grandchildren. I sincerely hope, that she had a fulfilled life.

A big thankyou to Rachel and her family and all my siblings, who cared for her so devotedly and were always there for her.
