“ I woke up this morning thinking of you like I have every morning for the last few months. If it's not that little scrunched up nose smile w the tip of your tongue sticking out that I see it's the angry frowny face you would give me when I would say something to make you mad. I miss you Grandma every day, you were a big part of mine and the girls worlds. You made sure that if things were going wrong in mine and my cousins lives that we knew you and Jose were there for us. Whether it was as simple as holding us while we cried or as hard as helping us escape situations we put ourselves in. You were loved by everyone, family.. friends.. possibly even strangers who you sparked up conversations with that probably made their day. You are our matriarch, the light that shines bright in all of our hearts and your spirit will live on forever in your children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. I love you Grandma and until we meet again know that your smile is imprinted in my brain and your love is forever in my heart.💕💕💕

“ You were such a kind hearted person. The one thing about you that I loved was that you could start a conversation with anyone. I wish I had it in me to do that. Even knowing you didn't have a lot, You always took care of all of us and for that I will forever be grateful. You were beautiful, strong, loving , a good cook, a great wife, mother and grandmother. I have spoken to several of your friends and they all tell us how much they loved you and that has filled my heart with so much joy. I love you mom.
