“ This is the second Poem I wrote for you. I did not read it the day of your Funeral, so I will write it here for you today.

Go Now Daddy

*The time is here we've come this far,
It's time for me to return to the car.*

So hard to turn and walk away,

“ This is what I wrote for you Daddy and read it for you at your Rosary.

DEAR DADDY

*It is so quiet since you've gone,
I know in my heart I am not alone.*

*I tell myself over and over again,
It's ok to weep, just cry don't hold it in.*

“ My sweet Grandpa,

We laid you to rest today and I miss you so much. You had so many beautiful flowers, you would have loved the bright colored roses that we had for you. God took you too soon from us and although we were not ready, God knew it was yo

“ Family of Mr. B,

It was always a pleasure to meet Mr. B either on his front porch or Mrs. Murray's swing when I passed each day on my mail route.

He always had a refreshing greeting and a smile.

I still have the air plane he made out of a coke
