“ One day, I got a FB friend request from Homer B Guerra Jr. saying, “I like your name, want to be friends?” “Orale,” I responded. “Pues, Órale” he texted back. We’ve shared many a good laugh since. We both grew up in San Antonio and shared many similar cultural experiences. We never met in person and even though weren’t blood kin (as far as we could tell) we felt close enough to call each other Primo,” “cousin” in Spanish. Tonight I learned Homey has gone on to that big taco stand in the sky. I’m sure he has the angles cracking up by now. Pues, Órale, Primo. Gonna miss you like a front tooth, ese.

“ Homer was like a brother to me, and the more I read some of the comments the more I see that he had the same effect on other people; that was Homer.
He was kind, intelligent, and had a crazy sense of humor. It was always a pleasure to talk to him on the phone, and you would be assured you would be laughing most of the time. I talked to you about a month before you passed, we talked about everything; old times, life, death, and even about getting together in the coming year. I'm gonna miss you brother, love you bro.
