“ *Handprints on my heart . . . Brush strokes in my soul . . .
The nite my sister called me, My heart felt like an abandoned shack
-- like those you liked to capture on canvas, unattended shacks in open fields of wildflowers, standing beside a naked tree and quiet windmill, but these past 29 mornings, sweet and bittersweet memories fill the air that I breathe as I realize that no one can ever erase those memories and stories living inside my heart. I love you and will hear you chuckle at sunrise saying "rise and shine mihija" and I will remember your hug and heartbeat at sunset; "good night, God bless" -- Prayers for MamaRose and all our family for continued strength and love.
Con mucho carino mi daddy

“ I’m going to miss you Dad. You always went the extra mile with everything you did. Every day was a new canvas to you and you would paint it with the colors of music, dancing, jokes, stories and laughs and your inspiration for these daily paintings was your family, your friends and your faith. And now that you’re in heaven, when the day is coming to a close, I’ll imagine God looking over at you and you’ll be standing there with a brush in your hand and he say to you, “OK Joe, you take this one”. And when I see a sunset, I’ll look up and say “Looks good, Dad.”

“ Joe was a generous, funny, and a true gentlemen.
He worked at the Guarantee Store down here in Del Rio many years ago with my mother Gladys Smith and with countless others. They were all his family as well.
God speed Joe and may Our Lord's peace fill your family's heart along with the many memories they will always recall and cherish.
The Caldera family now has a true Christmas angel watching over each and everyone of them. Judy
