“ Let me tell you the hell that my brother's wife Rachel put me through she denied me of seeing him one last time the 30 minutes from my house she denied me of saying goodbye to him hugging him and tell him I love him and say one last prayer for him she didn't tell me he passed away until the 29th of January the night he passed away the next time I saw him was in a casket then she sits me next to her and across on the other side of the funeral home and I had to listen to her and go on about how they visited with him for the nine days he had left a living and talk to him and and everything else and I never got a chance to even see him Rachel almost destroyed me and she did that out of pure meanness and if I have never met anyone more evil in my life than Rachel so anyone would have anything to do with her watch your back and say a prayer because she is a demon seed she's a narcissistic psychopath with bipolar tendencies

“ My final memory of my father is as I write this, parked outside the funeral home, and being denied access to say goodbye to my father by his widowed wife. Father, I know you would not have wanted this and I'm sorry I couldn't say goodbye while you still lived. I was again not allowed to see you three days before your passing. But I'll choose to see this as a gift. To have my memory of you be solidified as the strong unbreakable, fiercely intelligent, and utterly dependable father you still are to me. While I can't forgive your wife for so dishonoring your spirit, I forgave you for leaving my mother and my sister and I years ago. My deepest regret was being denied the chance to tell you that by your wife. I'm now heading to your burial, because I asked myself what you would have done. And you would not have let God Or the Devil deny you from attending his burial, let alone granpas second wife. Which he did not have. I'll write a full obit when I'm not driving pops, as I'm now going code 3 pursuing your white hearse down i10 north bound. I love you dad.

Notice one thing only three people were not allowed to see Larry before he died me his sister his son and his daughter the rest of Rachel's family was all around him on the day he died they knew he was dying but us three were kept from even knowing that much or even saying goodbye to him on the day he died what person who claims to be a Christian is so heartless and cruel and uncompassionate to do that to another person

“ I graduated from the SAPD academy in 2005. Ken was working Prue B shift. That's where I met him. He was considered an "old-timer" a guy who's been on several years and probably saw everything you can think of on the street. I worked with him there until he retired. I moved on and hadn't seen or heard about him for years. Then last year I went to a call over here on West T shift. One of the younger officers told me that some guy who used to work for SAPD was there and had a video of some street racers. (the reason we were dispatched) The SAPD officer pointed at a figure of a man several yards away. It was dark so I couldn't see him very well. I walked over to him and he turned and looked at me and it was Ken Mahl. I was so surprised to see him. He remembered me immediately. We caught up on the missed time. He said he was working for Grey Forest PD. He asked me all about my career and what was going on. After that night I went home and told my wife I just saw Ken Mahl. She was on Prue B shift too. Ken knew both of us. I told her what we talked about. It seemed like only a few weeks later someone asked me if I heard about Ken Mahl. I said no why? I was informed that he passed away. I asked them if they were sure it was Ken Mahl because I spoke to him not long ago. Well, it turned out to be him. I was surprised and sad to hear it. It's strange that several years later, we would meet once more before his passing. Rest in peace brother. James and Stephanie Price.

I can't believe his wife Rachel two days after he died he went to the pension department police department and got his pension out 2 days after he died and she acted at the funeral like she was at a party laughing and joking around and giggling and everything and she treated his sister like she was nothing she treated her like she was nothing but trouble she was very mean I'm his sister and I can tell you right now I have never met anyone as evil as Rachel it just it shocks me how evil she is she does narcissistic psychopaths with bipolar tendencies she's cruel she's cold and she's uncompassionate she didn't think twice about keeping me out of his life she cut his son his daughter and me his sister out of his life and cut out I changed as well and cuz completely out of it so we didn't get anything which I could care less if I get it or not I don't care but was heartless what she did she make sure her family got to spend the last time days of his life with him and none of Larry's family could and she wouldn't even let his children come to his funeral that's how heartless and cruel she is let me tell you people if you consider her a friend think twice because she doesn't know what friendship is she's very evil so watch your back “ Too many great memories to just pick one shared with Larry, but one that stands out was him rolling down the mountain instead snow skiing down, and when we were informed that the road was snowed in all the way back to Tx. we went for a long wild ride to get back home. I spend so much time with Larry since 1988, so to know him was to love him.
