“ I remember growing up visiting with uncle Lionel. Lots of laughter with him joking around together with my mother Gilma and myself. He will never be forgotten in our hearts. My mother in heaven will definitely be hugging him tightly

“ When Hector and I first started dating Lionel made a silly joke about us being an interracial couple. But he was always careful to speak mostly in English in front of me because he knew I didn't understand Spanish. I always appreciated that.

“ Mr. Martinez was a good man. I know this not only because I knew him but because of how much his Sons and Daughters cared for him. They visited him frequently not just to see him but to make sure he was eating enough and that he was taking his medications, the list could go on and on. This is another one knows just how special of a person he was. My condolences to all his family. We are here if you need anything.
