“Mary Sue was one of the first people we were introduced to as my family moved to San Antonio, in the early 1980's. She and Howard were so welcoming, and became fast friends of my parents and i throughout all the years....special memories of me were when Mary Sue and Howard invited me to a London Royal Philharmonic Concert in downtown San Antonio, the get togethers at the old Earl Abel's restaurant, where their was always laughter, and good food....After Howard's passing she and i became even more fast friends, fondly remembering the christmas lights drives, and church services, and the little adventures we would go on, when i would stay up in San Antonio for a brief spell...We had a running bet, (which i never won) that i would catch her out of her "just stepped out of a bandbox", or "dressed to the nines" look .. she would maybe slip and have a old Spurs tshirt on, and work clothes,... never happened!!!

Rest easy, Mary Sue, your son Steve and all your works,....were good!
