“ Hi Mary, I came across a picture of you today. I know u hear me always talking to u as if u were right here. Maybe u are. I miss our talks, our sister outings. My baby has gotten so big. He would have loved u as much as I do. He reminds me of u. He has a kind heart and spirit. And he loves animals the way we do. My life would be so different right now if you were here. I would've liked to have known that life. Of all my sisters u are my soulmate, kindred spirits. I know ur okay and happy. I know u feel the love we all still have for you. Well I guess we have a new family tradition....u and mom share a bday and now me and my grandson do too. He has my personality too, poor thing. I used to dread the day u left until my other grandson turned my sorrow into sunshine when he decided to be born on the same day. It's as if our two worlds are still intertwining, still keeping us connected in some way. I also baptized my baby on ur bday. No amount of space, time or world can separate us. I still remember ur voice, the way u say my name, how u called out Nathan's name. I remember exactly where everything was in ur house from my many times of housesitting. I know I will miss u every day and no it doesn't get easier, they lied. Ten years. Ten long years. I luv u Mary. I miss my sister. Until our next chat. I'll keep watch and think of you every day. Luv u.....
