I was the manager of the AHHS basketball team from 1964-1967. I have many fond memories of coach Barborak. His favorite saying was “no pain no gain” it really helped motivate the players. We had some really great players. I remember a triple OT game we came so close to wining but we didn't.RIP coach!!

“ I was fortunate and had the opportunity to play basketball under Coach at AHHS from fall 1965 thru spring 1969. He fueled my love of b’ball for life! There were a ton of good times, even at 6:00 AM during fall workouts, and learning the sport. And, he was a pretty good history teacher, too. He inspired you to learn! Condolences to the entire family. Lee Carleston

“ My father was a coach at the same time as Mel and were good friends. I remember him coming to our house when I was a kid and what a kind person he was. My Dad, Ross Youngs, was the football and track coach at Alamo Heights Junior High when Mel was at the High school. Coaches were different back then, Mel and my Dad among them, when winning wasn't the whole world. Instead, what was important was sportsmanlike behavior, integrity, doing your best, and having a good time, win or lose. In all the things of life, not just sports... regardless of the score, Mel was a winner

“ Mel and Steve Swanson were very good friends in their later years. They would call one another at least once a week to check in. They loved reviewing the old Alamo Heights games that Steve had played in high school. Each could remember those games so clearly. They were dear friends. Each wrote a book to discuss their life in basketball and Coach in other sports also. The comradery was palpable. They could talk for hours. Steve would have been so happy that Coach got into the Hall of Fame here in San Antonio. He had worked toward that goal on other occasions. Steve was proud to call Coach Barborak his friend. Steve involved Coach in our first date since we were in school, which ended in a second marriage for both of us for 15 years. Coach will be missed. Love, Gay Swanson
