“ I can't say I knew my great-grandmother in her prime. I envy those who can speak fondly of the meaningful conversations, or the long summer days. Though I wish to of known her like my family, I am nonetheless so thankful for the time I got. Many people never knew their grandparents, but I knew my great- grandmother. That in itself is lucky. And I have so much to thank her for. So thank you Mamaw, wherever you are. Thanks for putting up with my many cheesy homemade cards, and my several questions, when you just wanted to sleep. Thank you for my grandma, she is amazing, and you raised her right. Thank you for bonding with me about the crazy squirrel that lived outside your window, and lastly, that you for doing what you did, and making such an influence in me and my families lives. You shall be remembered, and will always be in our hearts.

Love, Ruby
