“ I have so many wonderful memories of my mom. I remember holding her hand while I fell asleep because I was scared to sleep alone. I remember holding her hand while walking down the sidewalk and jumping over cracks when I little and living in Chicago. I remember her teaching me how to sew and helping me make all my barbie clothes. I remember the joy in her eyes when my kids were born. She and my dad practically raised my kids while we were working. She and my dad taught them Spanish. I remember Mackenzi crying for her Mamo when we would pick her up to go home. I remember spending weekends at the Frio River. You and dad loved it there. We did so much, visited so many places. And although she had dementia towards the end, my mom never forgot me. She looked forward to me visiting every Wednesday and taking her to eat every Sunday. The only thing that makes me smile is knowing you are in Heaven with dad but I do miss and think of you every day. Te quiero mucho, beso y abrazo.
