“ Robert was the brother I never had. We were closer than brothers our bond did not come from shared DNA but from a mutual love for each other. I was honored to be the best man at his wedding, but truth be told he was the better man. He married his cherished high school sweetheart and loved her deeply until he was united with her last week. Robert would not just give you the shirt (Hawaiian or Tie Dye) off his back he'd give you his entire wardrobe if you needed it. When duty called Robert stood tall. Instead of following the Baby Boomer model of building his own empire he chose to stay and take care of his parents until the day they transitioned on. Robert was the poster boy of selflessness. He tirelessly worked for free at a Volunteer Fire Dept. When his dad passed, we spent a night fishing, not a word was spoken, he grieved silently, he smiled and thanked me then it was on to the next mission for him. Robert incorporated everything that makes a man a man. He was fiercely loyal. He was uncompromisingly selfless. His love for others was inexhaustible. I know many Christians, but I don't know many that lived out their life like Jesus did. My brother Robert didn't talk Jesus, he lived Jesus. I can think of no other person in my network that deserves to hear the words "Well done, Good and Faithful Servant". -George A. Garza

“ My baby brother had three significant God blessed days in his life. The first was when he met Cheryl, the bestest thing that ever happened to him. Second, Nicholas was borne to them and then, thirdly, Kara joined them and completed their family. Robert loved his family so very much and worked hard to support the forever union he had with Cheryl. He was a stubborn, hardheaded German Warrior with a soft, tender Irish heart of gold. He has now been released from his earthly bindings to reunite with his beloved wife and other loved ones already called home to Heaven. He will be sorely missed but our mourning is tempered by knowing his heart is now forever safe with our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Well done, Bobby, well done. Awaiting our reunion in the sky, Ann Elizabeth. ❤️
