“ I was proud to know Robert for many years. When I first met him, he was a veteran official with the respect of the whole chapter. I got to know him through basketball, golf and on a personal level. He was one of the most professional individuals I have ever known. Over the years I valued his critiques on my officiating. I learned so much from him and gained the confidence to approach officiating the right way with ethics, honesty and integrity. I was lucky enough to work with him last year and see his high expectations of coaches, players and officials. He will truly be missed and remembered.

*Robert was a true basketball professional. I still fail to adequately incorporate his simple advice for 'better travel calls' by "looking at the game from the 'floor-up' and then you will quickly identify the pivot".
