She is preceded in death by her parents, Pedro and Juanita Silva; siblings, Elida Silva Donato, Felicitas Leyva, Maria Magdalena Gonzales, Juan Silva and Arturo Silva; grandson, Christopher Allen Rothenbach. Rosaura is survived by her children, Macario Ortiz (Margaret) and Lori Jochen (Chris); 5 grandchildren, Edward Macario Ortiz (Merrilu Reeder), Andrew John Rothenbach (Jennifer), Jacob Ryan Rothenbach (Reyna), Phillip James Romo and Joseph Daniel Romo; 9 great-grandchildren, Jacob Reid, Mason Rothenbach, Isaac Rothenbach, Madison Rothenbach, Delilah Romo, Eleanor Romo, Evan Reeder, Raphael Reeder-Ortiz, and Christopher Reeder; siblings, Henrieta Felan, Esperanza Muniz, Olivia Morales (Ray) and Marcelino Silva (Patricia), and numerous nieces, nephews, extended family members and friends.

Rosaura was fondly known as "Chawa" by her family and friends. Chawa was the second oldest out of her parent's ten children. She took care of her siblings by making sure they were fed and went to school. By doing so, she was molded very early on to be highly independent and hardworking. She raised her two children on her own and found ways to supplement her income. She sold handmade crafts as well as made batches of tacos to sell on her way to work. Her customers dubbed her "The Taco Lady." Chawa was a devoted Catholic who attended St. Margaret Mary Catholic Church. Much later in life, she enjoyed spending time by herself working on crossword puzzles, watching "novelas," and going out to eat at her favorite restaurants. She will be dearly missed by all those that knew her.
