Tribute Wall

“ My mom was and always will be the strongest person I have ever known. My mom touched people's hearts in many different ways, thru thick and thin even at her age I see and realize that she was a inspiration, to all that new her. The strength and will to live. And to never lose hope and never give up. Many times people lost hope on my mom, but she bounced back. Her longevity was eating healthy enjoying life earlier in her life thru dancing as she trully enjoyed doing with my father. Even the last 24 plus days my mom still kept trying, even with all that was happening to her, faith was still inside her till her final departure from here on earth. Now may she fly with the rest of the angels in heaven, young again, and dance in heaven for all eternity. I will always love my mom, for being there when there was no 1 else around, she gave me strength and the will to push on. There will always be a empty place in my heart that will remain and only those that trully care about someone are the only ones that can understand and see what it is all about. Its something you cannot buy or place a price on. For we are only here for the time we are here on earth.

You will always be missed.

From your loving son Kenneth
