“ I still can't believe your gone, life will not be the same without you. You fought till the very end & you stayed strong! I have so many memories of you, from my graduation party, to hanging out at Aunt Cindy's, & just hanging out at bars, fiesta, etc, but my most favorite was when we went to the Cypress Hill Concert. You had literally just walked out of the hospital, & said there was no way you were missing it. I spent most of the night asking & making sure you were ok, & were feeling well, but that didn't even matter to you, we were having a blast. you were singing, you threw your hands up, you laughed,...it was the best time! I'm gonna miss you...I already do, I know your happy, healthy, & in a much better place...I'm so jealous because I'd rather have you here, but now you got your wings...RIP Cousin, I'll love you, & I'll carry you in my heart always! ”

“ Our Individual lives are like a chapter in a book. It is not until our physical death that our chapters become final - but only God, the Author, knows when the book will be final. Your chapter in the book of Guevara is now complete my brother, and it's filled with courage, love and determination. LIVESTRONG - damn right you did! The great Jimmy V once quoted, "Cancer can take away all of my physical abilities, It cannot touch my mind, it cannot touch my heart, and it cannot touch my soul." No sir, God has claimed your soul now. See you again one day.

Love,
your brother James
