He is part of a long lineage that can be traced to the original Tejanos in South Texas. As a young man he lived through the Great Depression, worked in the Civilian Conservation Corps CCC and for the Works Progress Administration WPA. He and his three brothers all served proudly in W.W. II.

After the war, he spent most of his career as a printer at the former Universal Bookbindery on Avenue B, San Antonio, eventually retiring from Kelly A.F.B. A devoted husband and father and "do it yourself" sort of man who enjoyed watching the game of baseball. Tito always put others first and never asked for anything in return.
