Ecclesiastes 7:2

It is better to go to a house of mourning than to go to a house of feasting. For death is the destiny of every man; the living should take this to heart.

The sun rose and the sun went down.

Wardell was a very dear and close friend of my brother, Bill Norville, who worked at Sears at Central Park Mall. Outside of work, they did many projects together for people in needy situations, like cut their grass, carpenter work, and painting. My brother passed away in April 2007, and since then Wardell became a very dear friend to me. He would call checking on me and my wife and would always send seasonal greetings. He liked to talk about things he and my brother use to do, current events, and his faith in the Lord. We talked often, and the last time he called was 1/3/2022 while he was getting a blood transfusion. We talked over 30 minutes, and I shared with him how much his friendship had meant to me over the years. He talked about his health and how good the Lord has been to him during his life. He thanked God for his wife and for the years He has blessed him with. We talked about his eternal life with Christ. We prayed together, oh how Wardell prayed, and I prayed for God's peace to rest on him during this period of time. Wardell was a gentleman of gentlemen, and he will be missed but will live on in our hearts. My prayers and emotional support go out to his lovely wife Dora.
