“ My Mamo has and always will be my best friend. I miss her dearly. My life has not been the same without her. She took care of me growing up, and she rubbed off on me, making me the person I am today. Mamo was so sweet and so kind to everyone. She always had a big heart. She shared her love with everyone. She was a beautiful Christian lady. She always prayed to the Lord for anything. She was an amazing singer. I remember that she'd wake up and start singing little songs while walking around the house, drinking her coffee. After she's done singing, she will sit on the couch and call her sister every morning. She was also an amazing cook; she cooked the best foods, and most times I would cook with her. We mainly cooked breakfast together, but those memories will always stay in my heart. Mamo was my biggest supporter; if there was a school event, she would be there. If there was a choir concert, I always saw her in the crowd. I wanted to play piano, and she took me to every piano lesson. She was incredible, and I am so proud to have her not only in my name but as most of me as a person. I miss her so much. I miss her hugs, her laughter, and her voice. I miss the way she answers the phone. I miss when she would say, "My Abby's girl." I miss everything about her. These past two years have been hard, but I stayed strong for her because that's what she would've wanted me to do. I love my Mamo. I love her dearly, and I'll never stop loving her. ❤️❤️❤️❤️

“ Irene was like a second mother to my daughter Sarah. Christopher and Sarah became parents at a very young age. Irene accepted and treated Sarah as a daughter. She guided both of them about having a good relationship and parenting. I remember when Chris and Sarah got their first apartment and we gathered around together as Irene said prayer of blessings. She always had God in her heart. I thank her greatly for always being there for my daughter as I was for her grandson. She was a wonderful woman who will be greatly missed. May the perpetual light shine upon her. RIP Mamo 🥺💔
